Standard CTS.03.01.09

The organization assesses the outcomes of care, treatment, or services provided to the individual served.

Elements of Performance for CTS.03.01.09

1. The organization uses a standardized tool or instrument to monitor the individual's progress in achieving his or her care, treatment, or service goals.

Note: Ideally, the tool or instrument monitors progress from the individual's perspective. The tool or instrument may be focused on a population or diagnostic category (such as depression or anxiety), or the tool or instrument may have a more global focus such as general distress, functional status, quality of life (especially in regard to intellectual/developmental disabilities and other physical and/or sensory disabilities), well-being, or permanency (especially in regard to foster care).

2. The organization gathers and analyzes the data generated through standardized monitoring, and the results are used to inform the goals and objectives of the individual's plan for care, treatment, or services as needed. (See also CTS.03.01.03, EP 4).

3. The organization evaluates the outcomes of care, treatment, or services provided to the population(s) it serves by aggregating and analyzing the data gathered through the standardized monitoring effort. (For more information, refer to Standard PI.02.01.01).
